

-62-

Abstract

An electrical circuit in a communications channel is provided. The electrical circuit includes an active resistive summer. The active resistive summer has a composite signal as an input. The composite signal includes a transmission signal component and a receive signal component. A replica transmission signal is also input to the active resistive summer. A common-mode shift current is also input to the active resistive summer. The active resistive summer includes a receive signal component as an output.